SPRING & SUMMER 1953 CATALOG

KAP-KADDY

Someone should have made this years ago—and spared my sacroiliac. It's a handy wall-type bottle opener—which collects the caps by dozens in the bin and does away with back-bending pick-ups. Just pull out the leather thong at the bottom to dispose of all the bottle tops at one time. No. R744 $1.50.

DELUXE KAP-KADDY

A triple-threat unit to open anything that's bottled or canned. Just hang it on your wall—and corks, cans, or caps will bother you no longer. Mounted on a grain wood panel, with a wood-handled corkscrew, can opener, and Kap Kaddy. No. R745, $2.95.

STAG HANDLED CAN OPENER

Now that beer cans have invaded the living room (aided by the respectability of Handi-Clips)—you'll be wanting an opener with more leverage and style. This imitation stag-handled gadget combines a hole punch (for cans) and cap lifter (for bottles). No. R757, $2.50.

HANDI-COASTERS

If you agree that brew is better from the can—then these handy handled-coasters were made with you in mind. Molded plastic in decorator colors, with an adjustable spring clip in the handle to hold beer cans (or glasses) firmly. No more frozen digits; no more rings on tables. No. R404, $2.50, set of 4. (Giftboxed.)

CHEESE BELL

Ring in this cheese bell at your next buffet, and beer drinkers will smile their approval. The air-tight crystal cover nests on a 6" oak cutting board; and comes whimsically equipped with four wooden mouse-head serving picks. No. R713, $5.50.

ELECTRIC CORN POPPER

When you consider what popcorn has done for the movies—there may yet be hope for TV, if they ever start making a set with a built-in popper. Until that happy day arrives, you'll want one of these Knapp-Monarch electric corn poppers. Just plug it into a wall socket, fill the measuring cup with Mazola Oil and corn—and pour it into the "Reservoir". In no time you'll have large fluffy popcorn, with no shaking or stirring. Rich chrome base and bowl, with cool plastic handles, and feet that are kind to table surfaces. The lid is heat-proof glass—so you can watch the corn pop. Height 10", diameter 8". Complete with measuring cup, recipe booklet, Mazola Oil and Cord. No. R721, $9.95

SPRING/SUMMER 1953

CRYSTAL PITCHER

There's a liquid look of luxury to this heavy based crystal pitcher. Quart size, 7½" high, with an ice-lip for cocktail pouring. No. R719, $2.95.

UMBRELLA-TRAY

Let a smile be your umbrella—and you'll get a mouthfull of rainwater. But if you place this tiny (4") metal bumbershoot on your cocktail table—folks will find it's a mighty handy ashtray. A neat candy dish, too. No. R751, $1.25.

ALADDIN VACUUM PITCHER

Imagine preparing your coffee before retiring at night—and finding it piping hot the next morning! The Aladdin vacuum pitcher will perform that trick — and some others, too. Use it as a cocktail mixer, as full size ice cubes can be inserted through the wide mouth. Holds a full quart—hot or cold—for hours, or even days. All-plastic, cream colored case, 11" high; with a no-drip spout, and a special closure that makes it impossible to over-pour. No. R747, $6.95.

USE-ME TOWELS

If you, too, have reluctant guests—who wipe their hands on your shower curtain: you'll appreciate the captions on these imported linen Guest Towels: "Oh come on, live dangerously", "Are you a man or a mouse?", "HIS—But you can use it!", and "HERS — She won't mind!" No. R714, $1.25 each ($4.00 set of 4).

ONE FOR THE ROAD GLASSES

As we ride along on the road of life—these highway signal glasses may make us "Stop" (or Slow down) occasionally, and ponder on our fate. Authentic yellow and black road signs, reproduced permanently on 12 oz. crystal hiballs. No. R764, $4.95 (set of 6).

THE WHOLE TOOTH

This giant (2") molar looks like it might have driven John Bunyan to "extraction". Made of white glazed ceramic, filled with a supply of plastic colored picks and lettered with the generous invitation: "Take Your Pick". No. R633, $1.00.

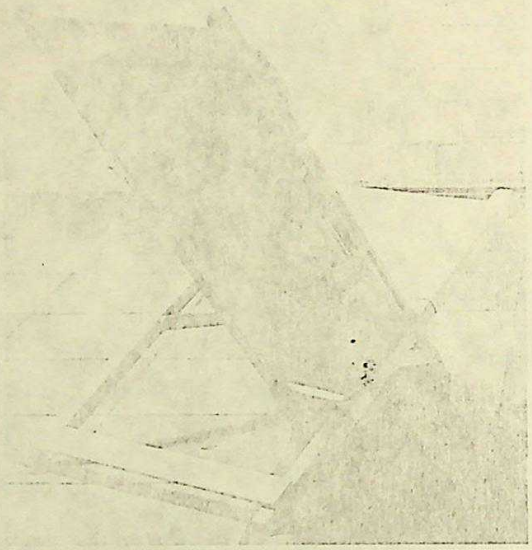
YOU SIT IN BOTH
Jorgen Gammelgaard, widely regarded as one of Denmark's most imaginative designers, specialises in cutlery, lamps and furniture. His deckchair (left) has a back panel running to the ground for more solid support. Recently, however, Gammelgaard has branched out and designed a flexible, compact tractor (above) for Linexa of Sweden, a firm which wanted to hire someone who had no preconceptions about what a tractor should look like. Gammelgaard says he approaches both chairs and agricultural machinery in the same way: 'People have to sit in both, the design problems are the same'.

CLOCKING IN
This delightful educational clock is by Kitte Trojaberg, who manufactures the toys she designs in partnership with her husband. The couple have a factory on Fyn, an island between Jutland and Zealand, plus an office and shop in Copenhagen. The clock face is in natural beech and the stacking rings in colour-stained beechwood. Trojaberg, a teacher as well as designer, aims to make kids' toys challenging, fun and as instructive as possible. The name of her company is Huxit.



[illegible]IC CONCERN
[illegible]ronic designer and [illegible]ion teacher Else Rose [illegible]ced this striking [illegible]poster: it celebrates the [illegible]th anniversary of 'Noah', the mother organisation of Denmark's flourishing environment movement. [illegible] currently teaching in [illegible] department of visual communication at the [illegible]chool of Architecture, [illegible] part of [illegible]penhagen's renowned [illegible] Academy of the Arts.

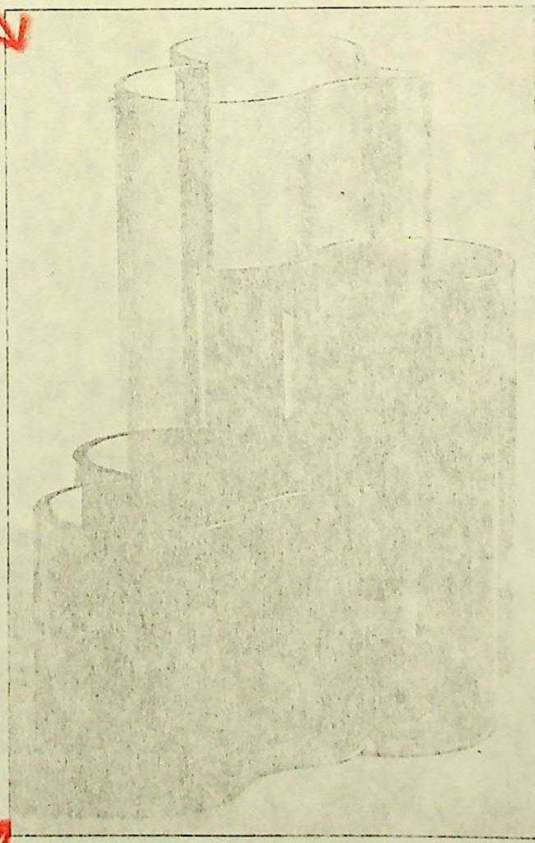
ROUND THE HOUSES
Grete Jalk designed this chair in laminated wood. It has a walnut wood veneer and an unbleached linen top cover which lifts off. While Jalk's use of natural products stands in a long tradition of Danish furniture, her elegant and effective chair is still waiting to be produced.



HEART OF GLASS
Sidse Werner designed these heart-shaped glasses for the Holmegaard glassworks: they're surprisingly easy to handle and drink from. Much of Werner's work is concerned with nature and romance. She runs her own office in a Copenhagen suburb.

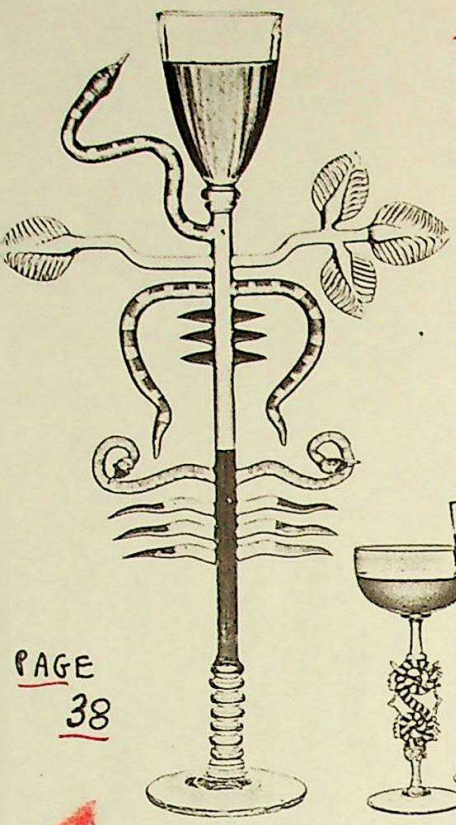
NOTES



A TOUCH OF GLASS

CHAIR WEAR
Mirror, mirror, on the wall—and this season on the lapel and necktie. For his new collection of bijoux, Karl Lagerfeld reduced a mirror (above) to stickpin size and borrowed a favorite chair (center) from his Paris apartment for the design of a brooch, at Bergdorf Goodman, NYC; I. Magnin, San Francisco. Howard Behar Designs' silk "living room" tie (far right), by Chuck Hettinger, joins the Interiors series, at Barneys New York; selected Macy's.

IT'S IN THE CARDS
Send a stylish note on one of 22 postcards (above) bound into booklets which capture the essence of the Clarkson N. Potter publications English Style and Japanese Style. From Chronicle Books, $7.95 each. Chopsticks, $32, and paper platter, $70, from the Museum of Modern Art gift shop, NYC.

SUN WORSHIP
Feel the heat 365 days a year with Patricia's Sun (left), a new wallpaper, $144 a double roll, and border, $36 a yard, to the trade at Christopher Hyland, NYC. The border is inspired by the 1958 poster Two Weeks with Pay by the legendary designer Gilbert Lesser. Also at George Wallach, Los Angeles.

MANY YEN
The beauty of the East comes West at Kyoto Arts & Fashions, a new Madison Avenue shop selling exquisite tapestries, home furnishings, and fabrics. Among their treasures is the kimono (right) of silk thread hand-dyed in gold, $13,000, and, draped over it, a handwoven obi, $5,600.
